

Psychology Syllabus

2023-2024

Mr. Britton

Course Description - Psychology is a discipline that studies human behavior and mental process. Through class discussions, activities, literature, and art, students will study such major areas such as personality formation, intelligence, child development, and mental illness.

Course Assignments

Weekly Content Work - Conventional exercises and quizzes on relevant psychology policies and interdisciplinary applications will be based on lessons from the course notes. There is usually one assignment per week. All notes/study guides/lesson plans for each of these weekly topics can be found on Google Classroom.

Semester Work - The semester long course will also require a culminating assignment that needs to be submitted by the end of the grading period. Because of the weighted point value of this assignment, students will be given class time to edit and revise their work.

Homework - Homework is never assigned in psychology class. The curriculum is designed to be completed in class. Creative or higher level thinking students, however, are encouraged to further develop class ideas by working at home. It is also common for students who don't use their class time wisely to be doing regular homework.

Contact

Email - dbritton7@fairview.k12.oh.us

This is the most efficient way to contact the teacher. Email is checked at least 2 times every school day. A response will follow usually the same day but no later than within 24 hours.
